The ultimate goal is to help them reduce recidivism rates, have a positive impact on lives, and keep the communities that they serve more secure.

cFive's unique product suite enables agencies to move well beyond compliance requirements and a reliance on subjective anecdotal information by facilitating automatic data collection that:

- provides outcome-oriented reporting
- enables remote client communication
- delivers critical data and offers key insights
- offers information to improve individual outcomes
- furnishes actionable data to impact program-level outcomes

Proactive public organizations are frequently interested in the improvements that can be gained by implementing advanced probationary and parole case/supervision management systems in their agencies to better serve their clients.

cFive offers technology that both staff and clients are able to quickly become comfortable using. With cFive, agencies have smartphone-enabled supervision capabilities that enable clients to maintain their school and work schedules by reducing time spent traveling and attending in-person supervision meetings.
